

A Report on the Conditions of Palestinian Political Prisoners featuring human rights activist, Ala Jaradat
from Addameer - Prisoners Support and Human Rights Association

Human rights activist Ala Jaradat, the program manager of Addameer, the Palestinian prisoners rights organization in the occupied West Bank city of Ramallah, and a former Palestinian political prisoner, will be sharing his experiences campaigning against political prosecution, for the rights of political detainees, actively working against the use of torture, arbitrary detention, the use of isolation, and other forms of political repression.

Israeli prisons and detention centers hold 8,100 Palestinian prisoners – including 60 women, 390 children, and 550 administrative detainees held without charge. They are imprisoned in substandard conditions and subject to torture.

Hamline University
School of Law
Noon to Two
Wednesday,
November 11
In the Annette K. Levin
Moot Court Room
Open to the Public

Sponsored by the Hamline Student Chapter of National Lawyers Guild & the Hamline Chapter of the International Law Students Association